

As a resident of FallsRidge, which backs up to the proposed Restoration Center, I want to state that I support the bill to create a Restoration Center on Seven Locks Road in Rockville, MD, but with caveats.

Our society, and our county, is facing an unprecedented crisis of mental health, substance abuse and crime. This crisis permeates every single person in our county in one way or another. This restoration center is needed. But what is also needed should it be built here, is a structure to keep any negative impact away from our neighborhood and surrounding neighborhoods. What is the plan for release when someone leaves the center? My concern is that clients will be left to walk to the bus stop, metro, etc.... and this is where a negative impact could occur. How is the County going to address this?
